

[illegible]

of his father, so I had great objection again going to Waterbury. I finally saw the Captain he put me on shore at the Hyatt's March, since to this day I was induced to go and said myself that I would not go to Waterbury.
But I was not to be so easily satisfied.
I was obliged to go to the Captain's house to land a box of wine I had on board from the purchase of the wheel which obliged me to go into a little shop, with one of the customers who had introduced to me, the night was so dark that we searched in vain for the key. I had to return to the boat and placed to Waterbury where we arrived next day and the day accompanied by the the day of his visits became so frequent that it was impossible for me to neglect his visits in the weeks of the Sept. and to him by assuring him that it was my firm determination never to change my situation in private, and I heard that he had never been the passing lady since his introduction to me and to this engagement was dissolved, a month was astonished to see him come to dine with us accompanied by Judge Hall who I also refused. I was that time he visited us daily until June when we again parties have my friends and my friends narrating to me the interest and the unusually severe and was so much as had made me to think in my heart that was the only one I could have been of any use to the world.

When I had been in the city for some time and had seen many of the people and had seen my own countrymen and had seen the opinion in regard to respectability to which you and my children were as high as that of habits were those of respectability and in the my state of the mind. It is impossible to see the answer to my suggestions in writing. I observed that as to the family no person in America could be so ~~rich~~ <sup>rich</sup> by an alliance with it, that my children should be settled on me and that I should be in the most common manner to be a father to my children, in some manner can be settled on my property, and my laws provided he has not any of his own property to any marriage he keeps his share in the same. At present, he has only one and that is his wife. His debt has been paid and he has business, he has fifteen thousand dollars and if interest and property will exceed it will be added to support his family and educate his children. I would not do this either until I got a bill of exchange for a hundred dollars which I enclosed. However, he has been since the last of the winter with a cough, little in health three months and he was in very bad health and has arrived, but has been Original manuscript in the Southern Historical Collection, Nicholas Philip Trist Papers, University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill