My dear Madam,

Thirteen years have elapsed. Every day thinks with pleasure on the happy moments (for indeed so hour appeared) of every other moment that I passed with you, and your amiable father at this time plunged in the deepest affection on several accounts, and where I was with you and your family. I thought I should pass over the remainder of this letter and give your charming society here on Mrs. Jeannie, I wish to renew it again but had not strength to hold a pen. My Prayers will with you all for safe voyage. Since your return to this country, she has grown old and is now as she was used to be otherwise, and of course is in perfect health. When you stopped at the Isle of Wright on your way to America, I was at that time, extremely ill, so I should have written to you, but I had not strength to hold a pen. My Prayers will with you all for safe voyage. Since your return to America, you are married and perhaps by this time have a very large family. I hope you find in Mrs. Balsam, an affectionate husband, an attentive and sincere friend, and a dear friend, that she is your kind and she does not know me. This letter will either be sent on given to you by Madame and Madame de Thaure. The first Portuguese Minister that came to America. They are both my particular friends, Madame de Thaure is a lady highly accomplished, and is a truly good woman. She is worthy of your acquaintance.
and friendship. Perhaps they may come to Monticello.

Humphry is the case, I shall be obliged to you,

Mr. Randolph, and you, sister to them, to give them en general to remember you and your family.

But you, sister, I shall be happy to receive a letter from her, as I have anxiously waited for an answer to this letter, etc.

Madame de Coerne are to live in Philadelphia, therefore, if you will have the goodness to send your letter to them, they will send it to me. All the news you can send me concerning yourself and family, and if your sister is going to be married and the government of Virginia is improved, and if our Federal Town is almost finished, and where it is situated, and if the situation is healthy, and the houses are large or too small, and how far from your house, etc., it will make me extremely happy to overhear from you, as I am anxious that our State should flourish and have nothing to disturb its quiet.

Mr. Coerne joins within affection to you, your sister, Mr. Randolph, and all your family.

Adieu, my dear and lovely friend, and believe me to be dear Sir,

Your sincere, loving friend,

Lady Blandish.

Original manuscript privately owned
London,
69, Fleet Street,
the corner of Queen Anne Street East.
June the 20th, 1794.

Original manuscript privately owned